1964 Forbian
Published By
The Senior Class
Forbes Joint High School
Kantner, Pennsylvania

Foreword

To you, the students and mentors of Forbes High School, we, the staff, present this 1964 Forbian for more than a mere photographic study of the high school days. We want it to be an enduring memento, our "eternal flame." Consequently, when contemplating a theme, we deliberated in expressions of symbolism and conceived the idea of using the ivy leaf as our symbol. The ivy leaf symbolizes deep-rooted, lasting friendship and remembrances, and that is precisely the abstraction we want perpetrated. Like the ivy, we will be reaching out to broader horizons, but our roots will be firmly implanted in our high school experiences. We, the senior class, would like to think that, in some small way, we have left a mark of distinction, and will not be forgotten by our many friends of the student body and faculty after we have graduated and, perchance, been swept by the tide of circumstances to different parts of the country or world. We will not forget you, and our book of memories will be an invaluable aid in keeping these remembrances alive. Therefore, we will cherish it, and it is our fondest wish that you will too.

Penny Shaver, Editor

Moulders of Destiny

3rd: Harry Bassett, Lois Litzinger, Ferne Wentz, Evelyn Pyle. 2nd: Rachel Mostoller, Melda Zimmerman, Susan Sage, Lucille Shaver, Grace Spangler 1st: Freda Custer, Leah Shaffer, Louise Longridge, Miriam Lease. Absent: Sallie Werner.

With infinite pride and pleasure, the graduates of 1964 dedicate their Forbian to the elementary teachers of Forbes. They were the moulders of our knowledge today. Through their devoted efforts, we learned the essential "Three R's," and the other fundamentals necessary for the advancement to high school. Many times when education is being considered, those first years seem to be passed over, but if "Johnny can't read," Johnny's education will be very limited. We feel that it is the elementary teachers who hold the key to the advancement of knowledge; and we wish, in this small way, to say thanks for those first six years devoted to guiding our first educational footsteps up the ladder to success.

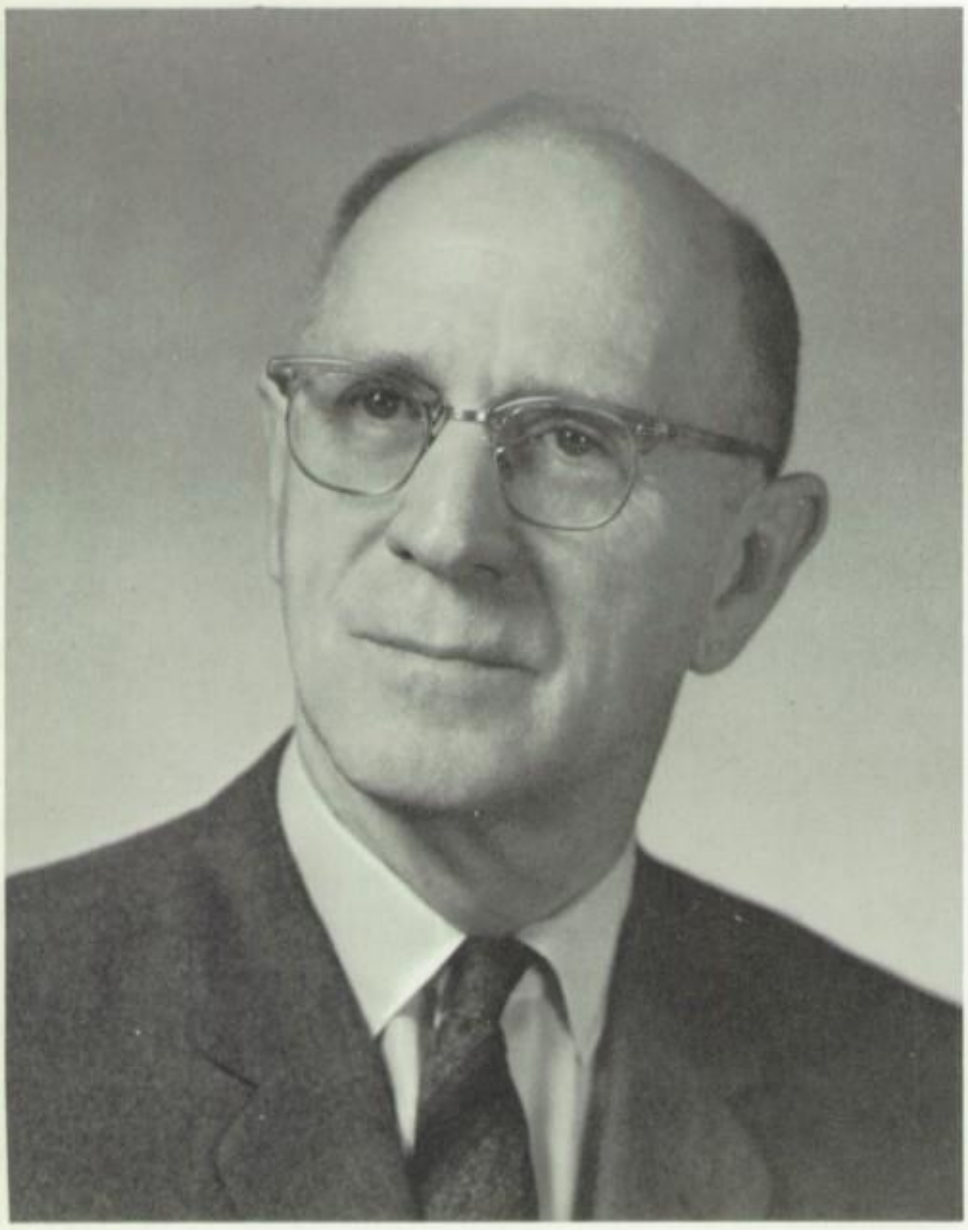
Promoters of Education

SCHOOL BOARD

STANDING — Frank Liberty, Arthur Bloom, Milton Lohr, Roy Shaffer, Clyde Spangler, Calvin Zufall, William Williams, Samuel Zimmerman. SEATED — Louis Berkey, Robert Meyers, Forrest Lohr, Charles Armagost, Lloyd Berkebile, Richard Bock. Absent — Donald Drenner.

At the regular local and joint board meetings, these men carry out the innumerable matters concerning our school. The remuneration is nil, the criticisms are considerable; but the satisfaction of performing a useful service to the community and promoting the welfare of the children of the district is all the reward they seek. They are to be commended for this dedicated work and merit the support of the citizens who place them in this responsible position.

ADMINISTRATION



I wish to extend my heartiest congratulations to each of you for completing your studies in order to satisfy the requirements for a High School Diploma. Never before in the history of our great country has so much value and importance been placed upon a secondary education.

The Class of '64 is one of the finest groups I have had the pleasure of working with in my thirty-six years experience as a teacher and Supervising Principal of Forbes High School.

I sincerely wish for each of you success in whatever work you undertake. I hope that you lead a clean and happy life, which will assure you of being a credit to your family, your school, your church, and the community in which you live.

David Lichliter
Supervising Principal

For your achievements in your scholastic work and in your extracurricular activities, for your fine cooperation with the faculty, and for your efforts in upholding the good name of Forbes High School, I extend to you, the Class of 1964. my most sincere congratulations.

As you are about to leave our doors and set out on a new life and adventure, I am sure that all of you have visions of being successful. Success is not an accomplishment that can be reduced to a formula. You may achieve some measure of success if you study as closely as possible those who have done what you still hope to do. Often by studying some person who has made a success of his life you may find a principal that you can afford to copy in your own battle of success.

I hope that the days spent here at Forbes will be cherished in your memories and that what you have learned here will make your road of success easier to travel.

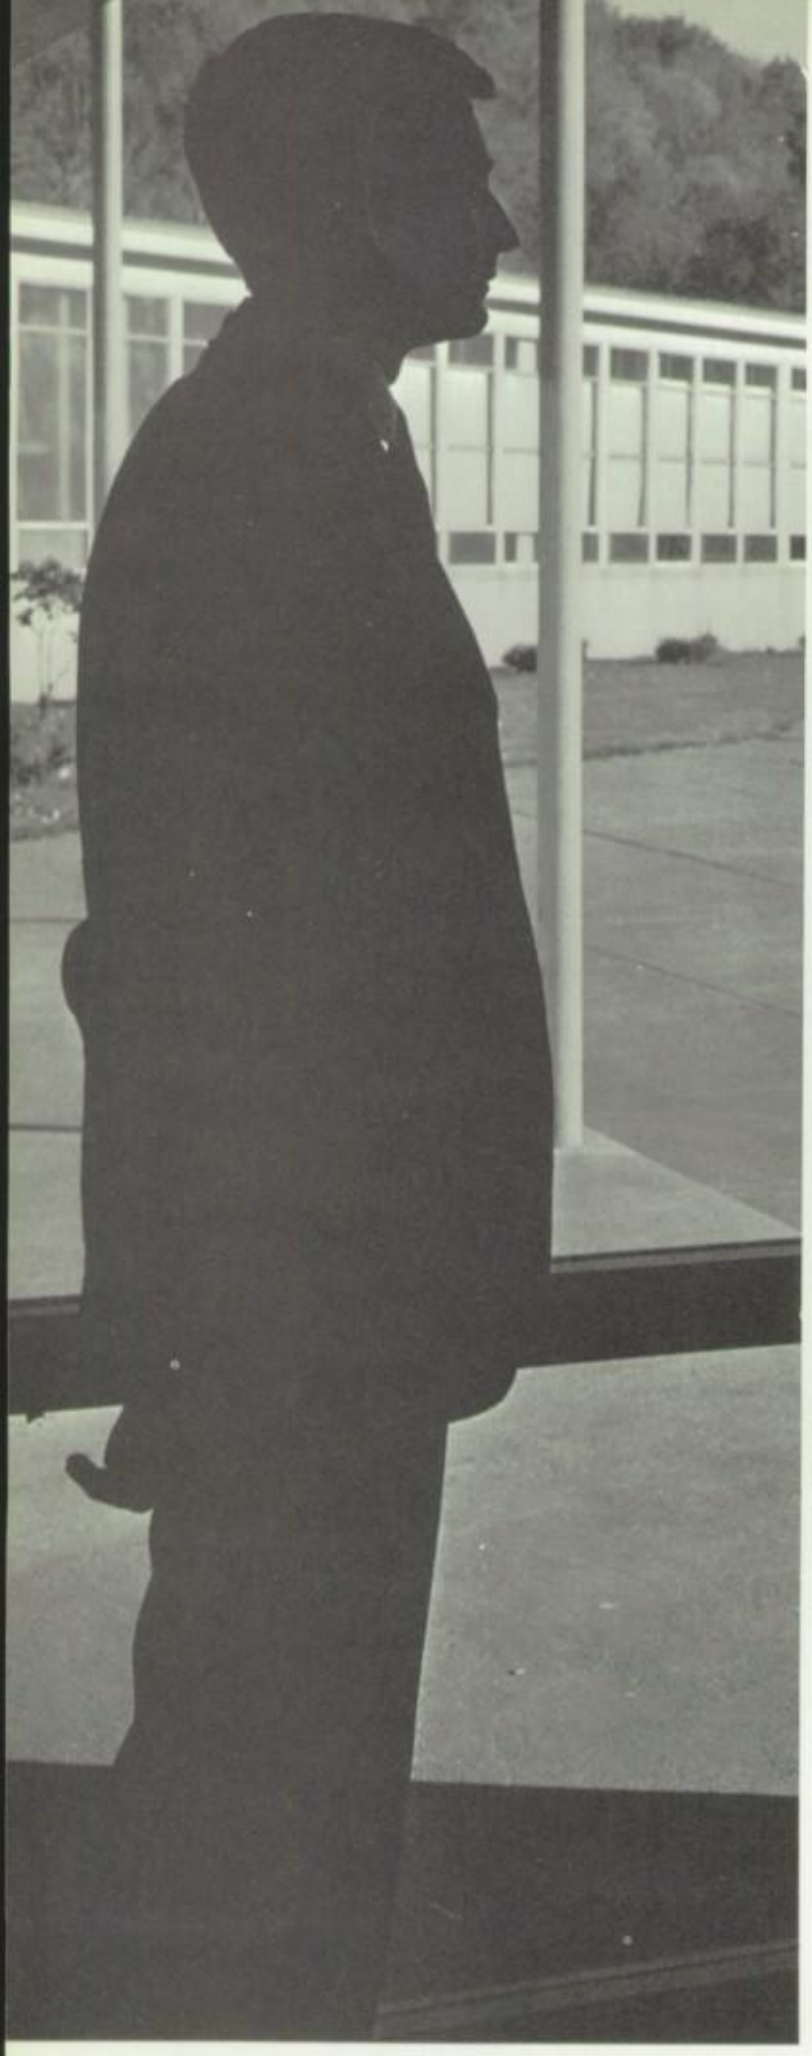
SENIORS



To the Graduating Seniors

As you reflect upon your life, you may find it much like an hour glass. The slowness with which the grains of sand mark the passing time is, in retrospect, a swift transcendency of the true meaning of your existence.

Many years have passed as you grope, with or without realization, for the genuine expression of self. In numerous ways, the years of high school have brought you closer to the fulfillment of this quest, a quest leading to self-confidence and a well-balanced character, a completeness of personality which will allow you to face the future without trepidation.

Upon stepping beyond the gates which have previously contained the entirety of your principal interests, you may have mingled feelings of regret and appreciation to those who have given of themselves in order that you might know and understand. To these persons you owe much of the foundation upon which you now must build your contributions to the destiny of the world.

Although there is no way of knowing what these contributions will be, large or small, virtuous or detrimental, contributions there will be. For each of you, as you walk the path of fate, leaves your mark on the sands of time. How this mark is interpreted by future generations is your decision, for now the sands lie smooth and unblemished before you.

Now you leave the days of carefree happiness and approach a future containing its own joy, a more profound and significant joy, perhaps more difficult to attain, but more rewarding in its aftermath. As you draw near to the day of your commencement, remember that it does not imply an end, but rather a beginning — a beginning of a new life.

One step more to your golden destination is left to be achieved. Yet this one step is a big step, one not accomplished by merely sliding along. It requires the joint effort of each member of the class.

We, the class of '64, feel sure that you, as our successors, will work hard and strive together to conquer this last challenging step to your graduation. We, therefore, wish each of you the best of luck as you climb onward.

How often you've been told "Your high school days are the happiest days of your life." In what better way may those happy events and activities be preserved than through the publication of the Forbian by the Senior Class of Forbes High School. Unless you've worked on the staff yourself, you can have no conception of the many hours consumed in compiling this book of memories. Each class strives to improve upon previous editions and the staff works with the thought in mind that "No outstanding work is done alone. Miracles can be achieved when you work together and don't care who gets the credit." The significant aspiration of each member of the '64 staff was to give you a Forbian that you will cherish now and for years to come.

"Everything yields to diligence."

To you, Miss Elliott, the class of '64 extends a special thanks for your "beyond the call of duty" assistance as our advisor for the Forbian.

The Forbian staff is especially grateful for your untiring counsel — always patient and encouraging — discreetly suggestive when our inspirations were at low tide. Our hope is that we may in some way make you feel proud of us and our 1964 Forbian.

Throughout the year, the Hillside-Aerial Staff has the responsible duty of keeping the students well informed of the happenings in and about the school. The newspaper, a monthly publication, has and will continue to be a good source of news for all. It is a credit to the staff and their advisor, Miss Elliott.

Leadership Is Their Responsibility

Officers

Student government is a school activity in which the students themselves share in the management of their school. The Senior High Student Council of Forbes is designed to offer the student body a voice in their school government.

Through their promoter, Mr. Lawson, they have become aware of their obligation to develop in the school harmonious relations between students and faculty, to provide assistance in school management, and to encourage habits of good citizenship.

Officers

The Junior High Student Council acts as the democratic government for the junior high.

Although they may be just beginning their governing experience, they exhibit abundant vigor in all their activities. From money received by the yearly magazine campaign, the Council buys needed items for the school. We congratulate the Council on its good work and anticipate its continuing success.

This year our band is again under the direction of, Mr. Stanley Mish. This year as in the past the band has worked hard to develop a better sounding band. The band has participated in activities such as football games, parades, and concerts.

The swing band has also become an important part of the music department in the high school. They have appeared in assembly programs, the senior class play, the spring concert, and special appearances out of school.

As usual our chorus, under the direction of Pauline Davis, has been a credit to the music department and to the school. This year the chorus was represented in the district by Mary Long, Deanna Marshall, and Carole Mueller, our three top voices. We hope that Mrs. Davis will go on to develop more who can represent us as well in the future.

They're the Tops

The name and talent of this fine vocal group has done much to herald the reputation of Forbes. They started blending their voices while in junior high school and have worked hard to attain their present status. Their many contributions to school activities and outside engagements will be pleasantly remembered.

Just as the name implies, this group is really "tops." These twenty singers produce a sound all their own which cannot be equaled by similar groups. We, and many others, near and far have had the delight of hearing their fine music.

3rd: David Lichliter, Thomas Gavlak, Larry Manges, Dale Dinning. 2nd: Dean Miller, Robert Lohr, Thomas Walker. 1st: Donald Shepley, Harold Shepley.

These boys transformed ordinary songs into unforgettable tunes in our school. They have entertained us at various activities and assemblies for which we must commend them. We will long remember their deep and enchanting melodies throughout the halls of Forbes.

Committees that worked behind the scenes.

We know! You finally persuaded the Widder Squiggins to accompany you to the hoe-down!

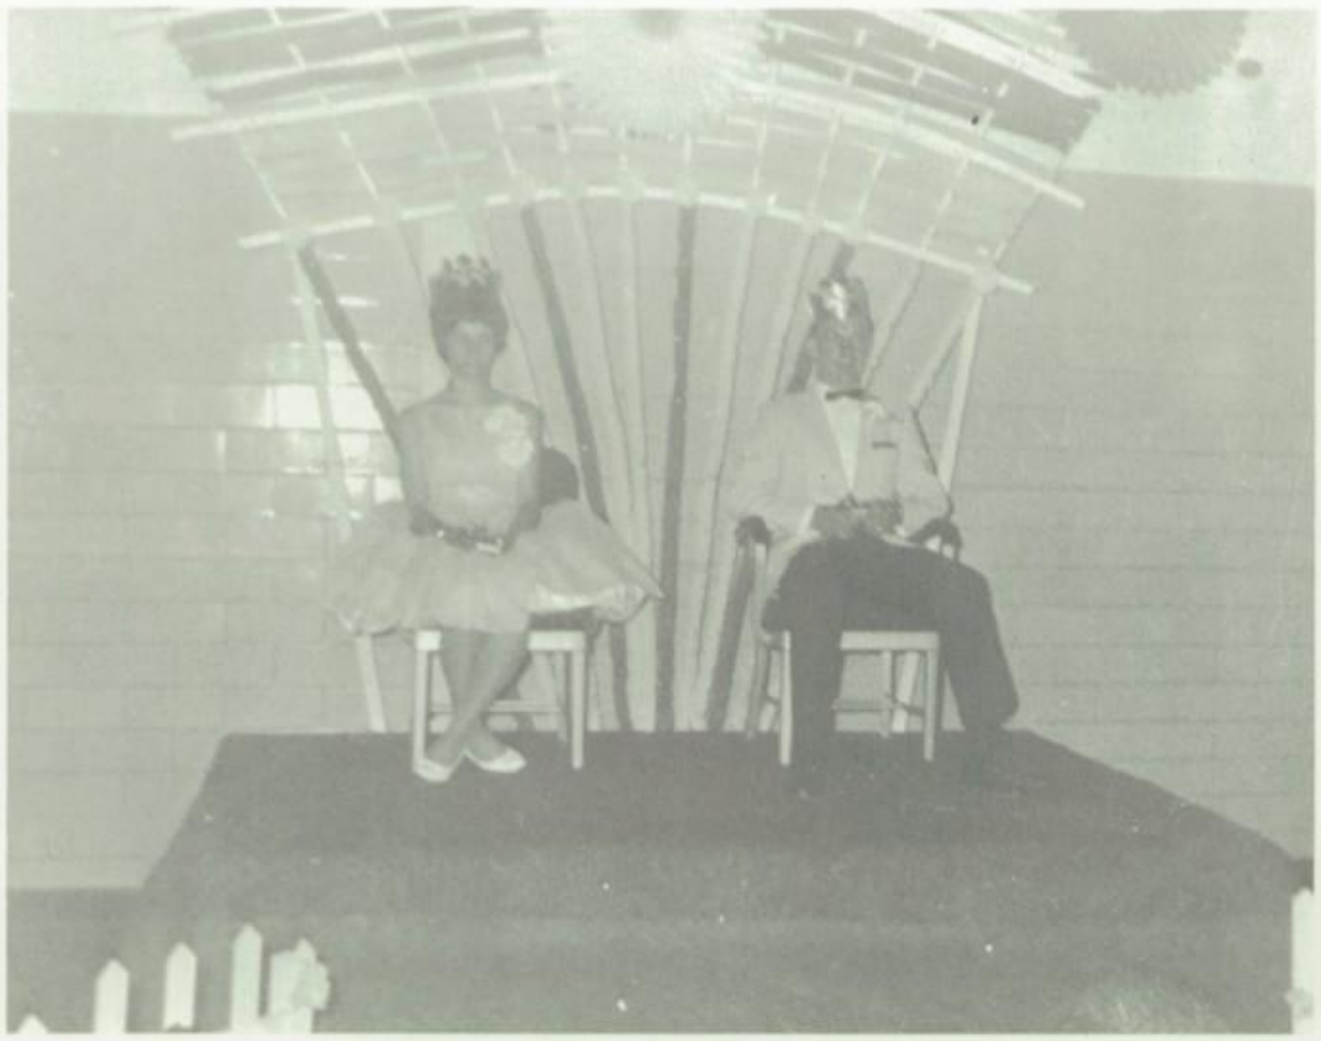
I niver smelled anythin' that stunk so bad!

In company with the current popularity for hillbilly shows, this year the senior class decided to produce one of their own.

The story concerns Cornelia Wellington Heister and her sister, Dorthea, wealthy orphans whose only living relatives run a general store in Lone Mule, Tennessee. Their father's will directs that the girls spend their summers in Lone Mule or forfeit their share of the fortune. Spoiled and accustomed to luxuries, Cornelia in particular hates the arrangement, but Dot, only thirteen, thinks it might be fun. Cyrus Goolus, their uncle, is a miser who sees a chance to make himself some money and decided to chase the girls away and inherit all of the fortune himself.

In his effort to get rid of them, he shows the worst angles of hillbilly life. The girls, on the verge of leaving, learn of his plot and retaliate by having him fall into the clutches of Widow Squiggins and her 'young-uns.' The play ends happily and the class concluded the production equally as happily.

May Fantasy



Bonnie Baker and Thomas McClemens reigned over the festivities.

The theme for the Junior-Senior Prom held May 10, 1963, was "May Fantasy." The auditorium was transformed into a spring garden by blithe maypoles, flowers, and birds and made a lovely setting for the girls' pastel gowns. Music by the Playboys complemented the sprightly mood of the evening, and many couples will cherish the memory of their "May Fantasy."

They will fondly remember their "May Fantasy."

National Honor Society

4th: David Lichliter, Edward Miller. 3rd: Mary Ann Suder, Craig Metzgar. 2nd: Karen Croyle, Penny Shaver. 1st: Carole Mueller, Joan Blough.

Scholarship, leadership, character, and service are the ideals that symbolize the National Honor Society. To be selected a member of this commendable organization is the highest honor a student can attain. The faculty members prudently make the selections; an inspiring induction ceremony proclaims the student's membership; and from then on it is the responsibility of this select group to set a superior example for other students to ensue.

Under the capable counsel of Miss Josephine Elliott, the members of the National Honor Society sponsor the Hillside Aerial, decorate the Main Hall Bulletin Board, and cater at sports events.

Game Write-Ups

We opened the season at home against our main rival Jenner Boswell. It was a hard-fought engagement in which our opponents were the victors.

Jenner Boswell 19 Forbes 7

In our second game we played Berlin on our field. A rugged defense led the Jets to their first victory.

Forbes 14 Berlin 0

We played our first game of the season against East Conemaugh at the Point Stadium. The Iron Horses ran up the biggest score of the season against the Jets.

East Conemaugh 33 Forbes 0

Our next game was at Meyersdale. It was a bruising battle, but luck was not with us and we were defeated.

Meyersdale 31 Forbes 0

We returned home for the next encounter with the Turkeyfoot Rams. Our biggest scoring effort of the year netted us an easy victory.

Forbes 30 Turkeyfoot 7

Our last home game of the season was with Shade. The boys gave a very spirited effort but could not break the jinx our opponents hold over us.

Shade 32 Forbes 14

The Jets played their only night game of the year at Laurel Valley. Blocked punts set up both Forbes touchdowns and the Jets emerged with a triumph.

Forbes 13 Laurel Valley 12

The final game of the season was played at Chestnut Ridge. After playing nearly four quarters of scoreless football, the Jets got the game's only score with about one minute remaining. This was a fine ending to a thrilling season.

Forbes 7 Chestnut Ridge 0

It is something new at Forbes to see girls dribbling a basketball across the gymnasium, and we wish to thank their coach, Miss Phoebe Reighard, for her efforts in bringing this about. The game offers the girls an excellent opportunity of developing co-ordination of body and spirit of sportsmanship — factors widely stressed for our young people today. They met and competed with teams from other schools, thus broadening their orbit of friendships. Quoting the girls, "It has really been a wonderful experience — black eyes, stoved fingers, et al."
